

Annual Percentage Rates (APR) of Banks

As at October 31, 2019

Financial Stability Department

Introduction

Annual Percentage Rate (APR) represents the annual rate charged by banks for lending to the public, expressed as a percentage of the yearly cost of funds over the term of the loan. The APR includes the interest rate and all other charges applicable against a credit (e.g. insurance fee, processing fee, commitment fee, income foregone on mandatory security deposits, etc.). The APR reflects the true cost of borrowings from banks by the public, and is a linear combination of the Ghana Reference Rate (GRR), risk premium and all other charges.

The GRR is a reference rate for lending consisting of a weighted average of the Monetary Policy Rate (MPR), Interbank Lending Rate and the 91-day Treasury bill rate¹. Thus unlike the APR, the GRR does not include bank-specific charges integral to the provision of credit to the public. The GRR for October, 2019 was 16.12% and served as the benchmark rate in the computation of APRs by banks.

To promote transparency in the pricing and provision of credit, the Bank of Ghana hereby publishes the APR of banks as at October 31, 2019.

¹ It should be noted that while the MPR and interbank rates are maintained, the Treasury bill rate is grossed-up to account for Cash Reserve Requirement and Cash-In-Vault.
